

AustCham Technology and Business Program

We are pleased to repeat this highly sought-after program now in its second series, to increase knowledge of our members on the threats and opportunities posed by disruptive technologies, to upskill in particular technologies, and to help close the gender technology gap and empower everyone to deliver innovative solutions.

The program will run one session per month from September 2017 to February 2018 with speakers from leading companies:

Session	Date	Topic
1	Tue 26 Sep 2017	An Introduction to the new technologies shaping our world (Commonwealth Bank)
2	Tue 24 Oct 2017	Artificial Intelligence (Google)
3	Fri 10 Nov 2017	Tour to Cyberport (Cyberport)
4	Tue 28 Nov 2017	Technology, Connectivity and Creativity – how internet of things evolve and heading to in the near future? (HKT)
5	Tue 12 Dec 2017	What is big data and why should I care? (KPMG)
6	Tue 23 Jan 2018	Blockchain - what are the opportunities & impacts of distributed ledger technology? (Commonwealth Bank)
7	Tue 27 Feb 2018	Connecting Commerce – how does your city shape your organisation’s digital transformation? (Telstra)

What our previous participants said:

Deirdre: Do not miss this! It is a soup to nuts guided tour through the major technologies impacting our work and personal lives today. It unscrambles the mysteries, through access to exceptional leaders in their fields. Make time!

MAV: A great big thanks to AustCham and the Women in Business Committee for organizing the Women’s Technology and Business Program. The program gave me a great insight into the emerging technologies and their implications for business and the community in general. I found the group very engaging with lots of discussion around the various topics. I would certainly recommend this program to anyone wanting to learn more about advances in technology.

Wendy: I am very pleased to be one of the participants of the The Women’s Technology and Business Program-Series I. The Program gave a great and comprehensive overview of the latest technologies and provided the insight of how digital technology and innovation can easily accelerate the quality our living and allow us to enter the borderless economy. This is especially good for a woman like me as I do not have a great exposure to new technology except my smart phone. Besides the topics and speakers were well selected, the timing, venue and length of program were also very well arranged.
