In Hong Kong, a vibrant international business hub, there is a leader who is committed to promoting economic ties between Australia and Hong Kong. She is Josephine Orgill, Chairman of the Australian Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong. As an important promoter of business cooperation between Australia and Hong Kong, she shared many insights and future prospects on the development of economic relations between the two places.

Promote the contribution of Hong Kong enterprises to the Australian economy

Josephine Ogier pointed out that Hong Kong companies have made large investments in Australia's real estate, financial services, retail and other fields, which have had a profound impact on Australia's economic development. For example, Cheung Kong Infrastructure (CKI) is one of Australia's largest infrastructure investors, while Power Assets and Chow Tai Fook Enterprises (CTFE) have made important contributions to the energy sector. In addition, the MTR played an important role in transforming the transportation systems in Sydney and Melbourne, while Linkreit, Sino and Ovolo Hotels have promoted the growth of Australia's retail and hotel industries.

She said: "Hong Kong is Australia's fifth largest source of foreign investment, covering many fields, including infrastructure, clean energy, telecommunications and hotel industries. As a chamber of commerce, we are committed to promoting exchanges and cooperation between the two places and through The Australian Government's dialogue promotes issues such as foreign investment and double tax treaties."

found influence of Australian companies in Hong Kong

Speaking of the impact of Australian companies on the development of Hong Kong's financial center, Josephine mentioned ANZ and Macquarie Group as two very important examples. "Macquarie celebrates its 30th anniversary in Hong Kong this year, and ANZ has had deep relationships in Hong Kong since 1970," she said. "These businesses play an important role in connecting Asian investors to global capital flows."

Macquarie not only provides leading Asian equity research services in Hong Kong, but also participates in cross-border M&A transactions and has completed transaction advisory of more than A$10.1 billion to date. ANZ is an active participant in Hong Kong's financial technology development, exploring digital solutions for cross-border payments and asset investment through the Hong Kong Monetary Authority's e-HKD pilot program.

Josephine emphasized: "These Australian companies not only strengthen Hong Kong's position as a leading financial center in the Asia-Pacific region, but also demonstrate Hong Kong's unique value as a global capital and trade connector."

Future opportunities for innovation and technology cooperation

With Hong Kong's rapid development in innovative fields such as financial technology (Fintech) and biotech (Biotech), Josephine believes that Australia and Hong Kong will have broad space for cooperation in the next three to five years. For example, Telstra's data center services in China provide key support for regional growth, while an increasing number of Australian start-ups are

g to develop in Hong Kong due to its funding plans and robust regulatory system. She said: "Especially in the medical field, many companies enter the Greater Bay Area market through Hong Kong, which not only allows them to access a large consumer base but also collect clinical trial data. Hong Kong provides unparalleled opportunities for international innovative companies."

Super Contact Success Stories

Josephine shared some specific cases on how Hong Kong can act as a super-connector to promote cooperation between mainland China and Australian companies. For example, King & Wood Mallesons is a successful example. This international law firm was established in 2012 through the merger of Australia's Mallesons and China's King &

Mallesons. It is headquartered in Asia and has developed in Hong Kong. grow. In addition, Australian innovative companies such as the International Rehabilitation Institute and Lacevo have also successfully entered the Chinese mainland and global markets through financial support and professional services from Hong Kong.

The Greater Bay Area initiative aims to connect Hong Kong and mainland cities into an integrated economic hub, which Josephine believes is an important opportunity for Australian businesses. She pointed out: "Hong Kong provides the best way to enter the Chinese market, especially for small and medium-sized enterprises. Hong Kong's policy support, living environment and internationalization make it an irreplaceable bridge."

She emphasized that as more international companies realize the value of Hong Kong, the Greater Bay Area will attract more investors and companies from Australia.

Milestone achievements of the decade

Talking about the major achievements in the economic relations between Hong Kong and Australia over the past decade, Josephine specifically mentioned the Macau-Hong Kong Free Trade Agreement (A-HKFTA) that came into effect in 2020. "This agreement provides zero-tariff protection for Australian exporters and ensures the important position of Australian service providers in the Hong Kong market." However, she also mentioned that she hopes to sign a "double tax agreement" in the future to further strengthen the relationship between the two places. trade and investment relations.

end of the interview, Josephine said she was confident about the future. She said: "As an international chamber of commerce, we will continue to promote economic cooperation between Hong Kong and Australia and advocate more impactful activities to showcase Hong Kong's brands, lifestyle and business potential." In Josephine O Under Gill's leadership, the Australian Chamber of Commerce Hong Kong is working continuously to connect the two places, create more opportunities for businesses, and deepen the long-standing friendship and cooperation between Australia and Hong Kong.
